

EU and the World

Europe Union and United Nations (Greece 1/3)

The European Union (EU) has had permanent observer status at the United Nations (UN) since 1974, and has had enhanced participation rights since 2011. The EU itself does not have voting rights but it is represented alongside its 27 members, one of which, France, is a permanent member of the Security Council.

Greece (2/3)

These rights include: the right to speak in debates among representatives of major groups, before individual states, to submit proposals and amendments, the right of reply, to raise points of order and to circulate documents. However, the EU does not have voting rights nor the right to sit on the Security Council.

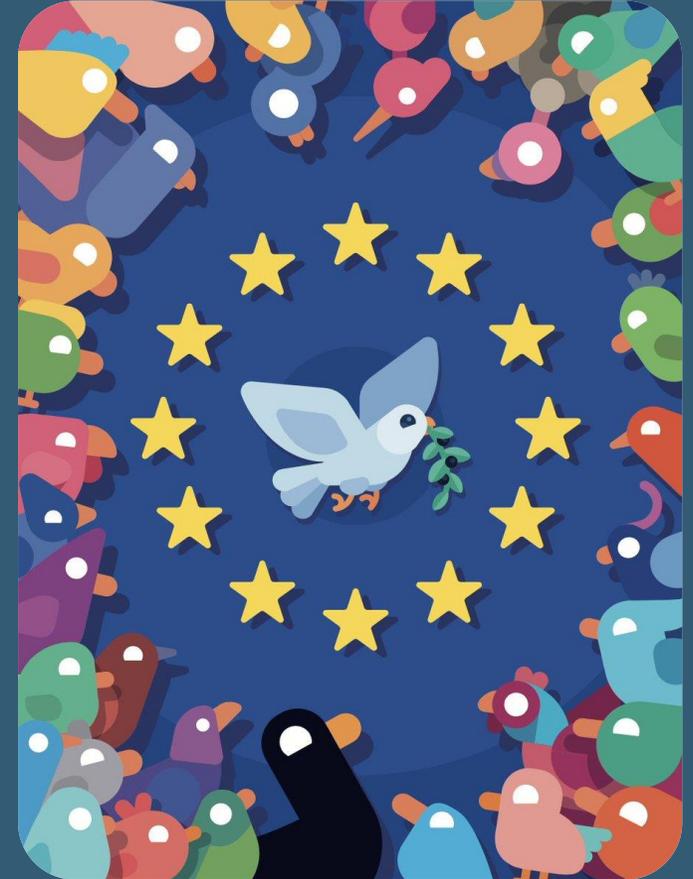

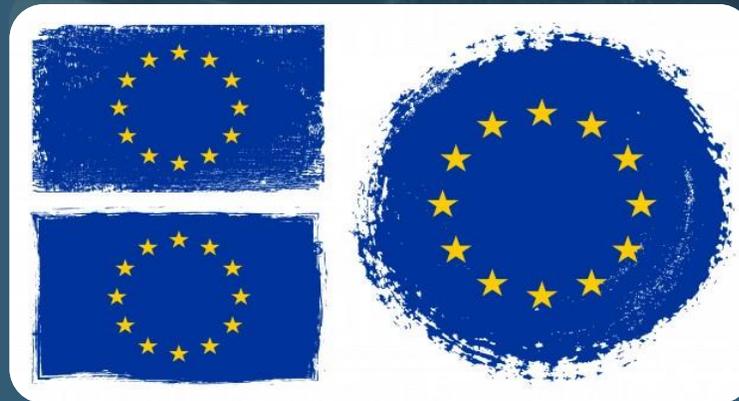

The EU holds an enhanced observer status at the UN. While normal observers such as the Arab League and the Red Cross are not allowed to speak before Member States at the UN General Assembly, the EU was granted the right to speak among representatives of major groups on 3 May 2011.

Greece (3/3)

The EU is represented by the President of the European Council, the High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy, the European Commission and the EU delegations. European Council President Herman Van Rompuy made the EU's inaugural speech to the general assembly on 22 September 2011. Prior to the granting of its speaking rights, the EU was represented by the state holding the rotating Council presidency.

ADVOCATING FOR CHILDREN

UNICEF works with the European Union (EU) to protect and promote children's rights around the world.

UNICEF's strong partnership with the EU is multifaceted and has grown significantly over the past number of years, underpinned by our shared values around development, peace and human rights. We believe that investing in the wellbeing of children and young people is not only a moral imperative or a legal obligation, but also a smart economic decision.

Portugal (2/3)

The EU invests significant resources to deliver life-changing programs for children in many countries and has adopted policies and frameworks to promote their rights. UNICEF recognizes the EU as one of UNICEF's most influential partners and largest financial supporters worldwide.

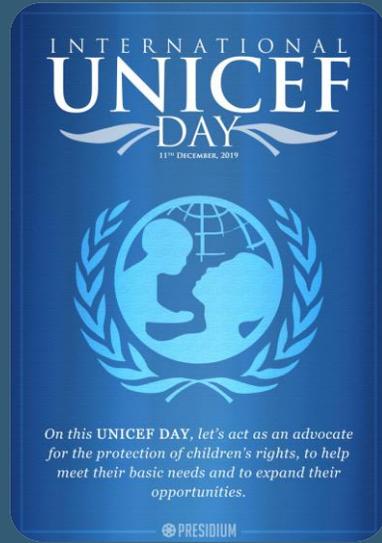

Together the EU and UNICEF have been achieving meaningful and sustainable results for children, in line with the Sustainable Development Goals.

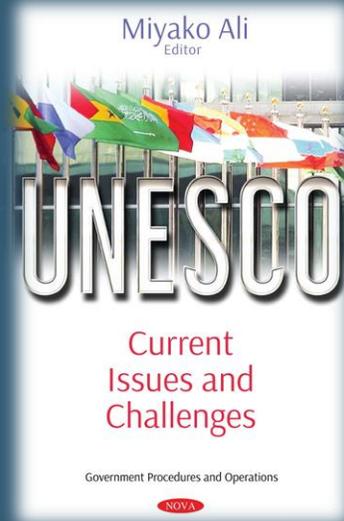

The collaboration between UNICEF and the EU focuses on two inter-related areas: mobilising and leveraging resources for children, and advocating for the protection of their fundamental rights. This partnership is steered by the UNICEF Office for Relations with EU Institutions located in Brussels, in close collaboration with UNICEF Headquarters, Regional and Country offices.

Europe Union and UNESCO (Germany 1/3)

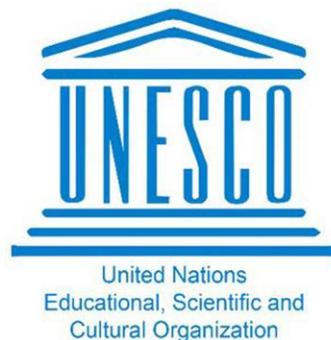

UNESCO and the European Union (EU) are close and natural partners, sharing values and objectives, and joining efforts to support countries in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals. This unique partnership takes the shape of a wide range of projects undertaken across the world, covering areas of mutual interest and all of UNESCO's fields of competence: Culture, education, freedom of expression, and equal access to information, environment, water and oceans, as well as a bolstered scope of policy dialogue. Together, UNESCO and the European Union ensure that no one is left behind!

UNESCO
GREEN CITIZENS

The EU is currently the third largest donor to the Organization. In 2019, three new agreements have been signed for the projects Reviving Mosul and Basra Old Cities, Culture and Sports for Social Cohesion and Sustainable Reintegration of Afghan Returnees and IDPs and System Building and Capacity Strengthening of MOE and its Agencies for Effective Delivery of Quality Education Outcomes (Iraq).

Europe Union and NATO (Italy 1/3)

Sharing strategic interests and facing the same challenges, NATO and the European Union (EU) cooperate on issues of common interest and are working side by side in crisis management, capability development and political consultations, as well as providing support to their common partners in the east and south.

The EU is a unique and essential partner for NATO. The two organizations share a majority of members, have common values and face similar threats and challenges.

Italy (2/3)

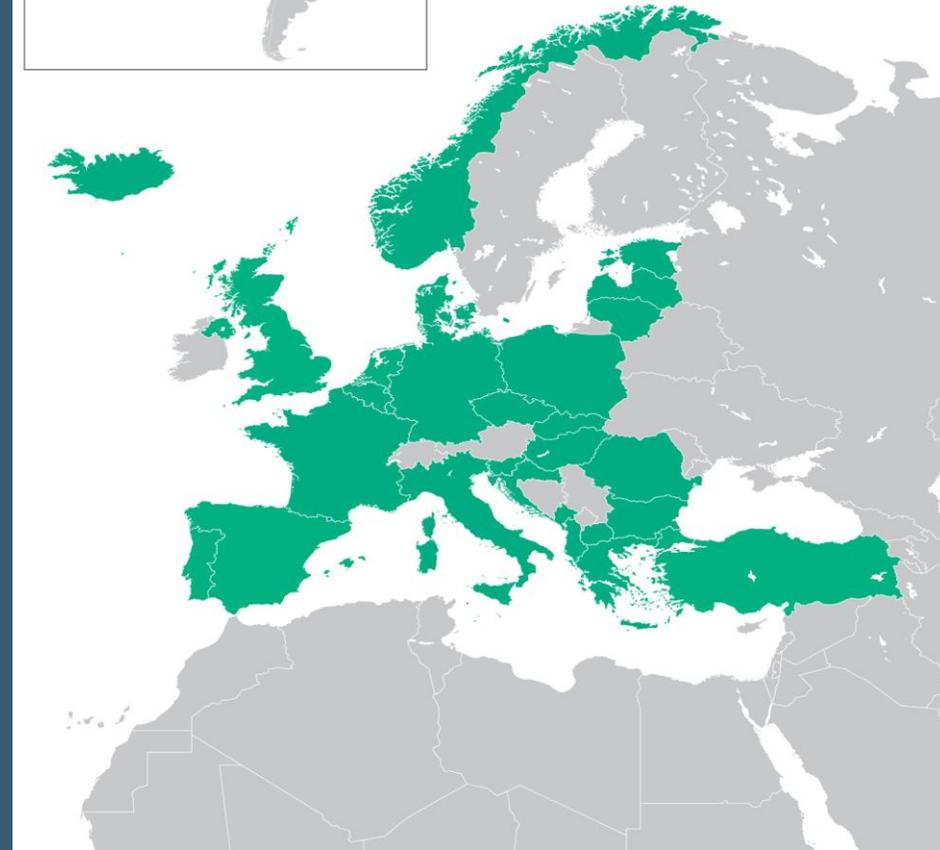

Relations between NATO and the EU were institutionalised in the early 2000s, building on steps taken during the 1990s to promote greater European responsibility in defence matters (NATO-Western European Union cooperation). The 2002 NATO-EU Declaration on a European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP) reaffirmed EU assured access to NATO's planning capabilities for the EU's own military operations.

Italy (3/3)

Close cooperation between NATO and the EU is an important element in the development of an international "comprehensive approach" to crisis management and operations, which requires the effective application of both military and civilian means. NATO and the EU currently have 21 member countries in common.

Europe Union and World Health Organization (Romania 1/6)

The European Union (EU) is an important actor in global health and international affairs, and a strong supporter of WHO's role as the lead agency for health, both globally and in the region.

It also works very closely with the European Council through the presidencies, the European Parliament, the European Committee of the Regions, and relevant EU agencies such as: the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (ECDC) the European Medicines Agency (EMA) the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) the European Environment Agency (EEA) the European Monitoring Centre for Drugs and Drug Addiction (EMCDDA) the European Agency for Health and Safety at Work (EU-OSHA) Eurostat the European Investment Bank (EIB).

European Union Tourism (Romania 4/6)

Europe is one of the most popular destinations to travel to, mostly because of its huge history, the amazing museums and the sense of "prestige" that is often associated with Europe. Many countries and nations admire Europe and the Europeans because of the things we have achieved so far, our countries' policies, the free health care, our respect for the Human Rights, etc. Americans have said in Youtube videos that they are jealous of the European culture and that they would "kill" to have this classy European "aesthetic" no continent can compete with.

○ Key Statistics for Tourism In Europe. In 2018, there were 713 million international arrivals, this has increased from 670 million in 2017. 83 million tourists visit France every year and it is the leading tourist destination in the world. There was a 3.5 % rise in international tourists in 2019. The continent contributed €782 billion in 2018 and 14.4 million jobs. By 2025 Britain's travel industry is set to be worth over £257 billion. Every year, EU residents take more than a billion vacation trips. Italy, Spain, France, and England accounted for 55% of EU travel. 35% of the world's global tourism expenditure is generated from the EU.

Half of the world's outbound tourism is generated from Europe. Residents of the European Union took 1.2 billion trips. It accounts for 50% of the world's tourist arrivals and 37% of global tourism receipts, it is the most visited region in the world

Erasmus+ and eTwinning (Romania 3/6)

Erasmus+ is the EU's program for education, training, youth, and sport in Europe. With a budget of €14.7 billion, it will give more than 4 million Europeans the opportunity to study, train and gain experience abroad.

eTwinning offers teaching staff (teachers, principals, librarians, etc.) working in schools in the participating European countries a platform for communication, collaboration, project start-up and information exchange, in short, a space in which to feel part of the most thrilling educational community in Europe. eTwinning has become an integral part of Erasmus+, the EU's Education, Training, Youth, and Sport Program

Fulbright Program (Romania 6/6)

The Fulbright Program offers grants to qualified graduate students from the European Union to study at the graduate level in the United States. Scholars from the European Union may apply to conduct post-doctoral research at U.S. institutions and are eligible for the Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence Program. In addition, teachers from the European Union are eligible directly through their country's Fulbright Program for the Fulbright Classroom Teacher Exchange Program and the Distinguished Fulbright Awards in Teaching Program.
